SWITZERLAND'S GREAT ASSET.

Our traditional sense of duty when our Country calls, seems to be ingrained into the nature of every Swiss. We have been able to maintain our independence thanks to the ever well ordered military regime. One peculiarity of our country, found nowhere else, is that every defender is custodian of his army rifle which he always keeps at home.

One million of Swiss (men and women) are organised for the defence of our Country. They comprise 450,000 soldiers, 10,000 cadets, 50,000 young marksmen, 40,000 gymnastically instructed youths, 35,000 for air protection, 10,000 for publicity and science, 35,000 for ambulance service, and 200,000 auxiliaries. The remainder comprises men and women for voluntary services. Truly a wonderful asset for our little country. Besides feeling proud of our beloved Country, we can also feel very hopeful that it will be spared in the terrible turmoil which rages at present in our neighbouring countries.
