this new institution, which it considers to be an indispensable complement to the European economic community. With the same idea in mind, Switzerland opened negotiations at the end of May on the basis of its new customs tariff with 19 GATT countries (General Agreement on Customs and Trade Tariffs). A thorough reform of European economy is in process of taking shape: Switzerland is alive to this and has not delayed her preparations for it.

OBITUARY

Last month we mourned the passing of a very well known and respected member of our Swiss community, Mrs Margaretha Kaegi, the beloved wife of Ferdi and mother of Rosemary, Andreas and Peter.

The Kaegi family came to New Zealand eight years ago, where they immediately settled in Palmerston North and afterwards started dairy-farming on a farm in Bombay, which must have reminded them very much of the homeland. Although in New Zealand only a comparatively short time, Mrs Kaegi won the hearts of everybody with her charming and warmhearted nature and it is hard to believe that we had to part with her always ready smile, and that the many visitors to Rockdale will find her no more. Our deepest sympathy goes to the bereaved family and the pleasant memory of her will live with us for many years to come. —W.R.

In Taranaki the Swiss people paid their last respects to Mrs Rosa Engelberger, whose death occurred suddenly at her daughter's residence in Kapuni. Her passing closed a chapter of fine pioneering history of this country, a life of hard work and enterprise. In her busy life, however, she always found time for social activities and in this field the Swiss people owe her a great debt of gratitude. Whenever there was a church function in need of funds, she was the prime organiser to stage a Swiss dance or social to give those needed funds a boost. She richly deserved the credit that as an organiser for well-attended and well-behaved functions she was second to none. She invariably knew how to keep the Swiss activities in the limelight without personal gain. As a wife and mother she reared a family of four daughters and one son, all of whom are married. To Arnold and the family we extend our heartfelt sympathy. —W.R.

CABBAGE, SPINACH OR SILVERBEET "WAEHE"

Line a cake tin with pastry or short crust. Steam finely-chopped vegetable until all liquid has evaporated (for a 10in. tin we need about two cups of steamed vegetable). When cooled add three beaten eggs, together with $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 cup of cream. Add some spice (such as majoram and nutmeg). Spread over pastry. Over the top place small pieces of bacon and onion rings. Bake for about 45 minutes.

STEWED APPLES VERY GLAMORIZED

Peel and core apples, slice finely. Soak a handful of raisins in some rum. Gently braise apples together with raisins in some butter until soft, add sugar to taste before cooking, also some grated lemon rind. When soft pour over some warmed rum and light it.

These two recipes have been picked at random from the "Nelly Kalender." This is a magazine published in Switzerland especially for women. It appears monthly. Amongst its pages are items of interest, such as fashion, homemaking, menu suggestions for the whole month and many excellent recipes. What is particularly nice is that in contrast to English women's magazines, the "Nelly Kalender" has our accustomed Swiss way of presenting things. Really excellent are the articles on health problems, such as may occur in any family, and the diets which will help overcome such problems. Thus over the past three months there have been articles with attached food suggestions on liver and gallstone complaints, on the very common complaint of flatulence (Blaehungen) and how to keep the blood stream pure. Space does not allow to enumerate further articles, but all are of interest. One year's subscription costs 18 Franken. Send order to: Nelly's Kalender, Kuesnacht Z H, Switzerland.
