A Farewell to our Subscribers and Contributors

After having been in circulation for 35 years, THE CIRCLE ceases publication with this issue.

THE CIRCLE, and its English Editor, would very much like to express gratitude to a great many subscribers who have been faithful followers for these many years. I take my leave of them most reluctantly. Indeed, their unfaltering belief in all THE CIRCLE has stood for has been often a source of strength from which to draw new energy when the thorns seemed to outnumber the roses. Month after month, year after year, it has been my personal pleasure to see the same names on our envelopes for the monthly mailing. May all these subscribers rest assured of our appreciation.

At this point, I would like to express my most sincere thanks also to another group, the contributors to the English section of our monthly. Though it was added to the bilingual magazine only fifteen years ago, it has been a pleasure that my editorship covered nearly all of that period. I have had the great fortune to come into contact with contributors to this section whose faith in our venture equalled that of our subscribers.

I've had the pleasure of meeting a number of these regular contributors, and many have become trusted and valued friends. They live, to name but a few places, in Australia, in San Francisco, in Wales, in Dorset, in South Africa, in London and New York. It is impossible for me to single out any one of them. They will all realize how much appreciated their contributions have been, not only by myself, but by the numerous readers of the English section. However, one co-worker does deserve special mention. I feel especially grateful to Ward Stames, not only for his excellent contributions, but also for all the time and interest he has given my English section. His advice and help have been of immense value to me.

Time does not stand still, and it has taken its toll of our CIRCLE. For 35 years the small staff of our monthly has done its utmost, but now when present financial straits cannot be overcome, we prefer to say «goodbye» voluntarily.

Thanks to all of you for your faith, and best wishes for your personal well-being.

THE ENGLISH EDITOR
