A TRAVERS LA SUISSE.

For the next film show of the Nouvelle Société Helvétique, London Group, which will be held at King George's Hall on Saturday, November 4th at 2 and 4 o'clock, it has been possible to provide a very special feature. Two films and a number of lantern slides of the BERNINA RAILWAY will be shown and explained by Mr. A. Zimmermann who is the acting Manager of this famous alpine railway. He has consented to come to London purposely to present these films and pictures to the Colony and he will give us a talk on the beauties of railway travel from Zurich to Milan in a way that will charm the hearers. His talks are esteemed most highly on the Continent and, we believe, he is one of those apostles whose preaching of the beauties of Switzerland will make us forget our exile.

This function will draw a large number of Swiss and their friends and, although Mr. Zimmermann will speak in German, even those who do not understand this language will experience a great treat in the splendid screen material provided.

A hearty invitation is extended to every Swiss in London and the admission remains free as previously.

"THE STORIES OF BASEL, BERNE AND ZURICH."

By M. D. Hottinger.

(Dent, London. 5s. 6d. net).

Thousands of people have visited Switzerland and admired the scenic beauty for which that country is so justly famous. Yet of those how many one wonders, have realised to what extent treasures of art and historical interest are stored up in its towns and what an important part those townships have played in the intellectual, artistic and political development of mediæval and Renaissance Europe? It is this story Mr. Hottinger has set out to write, and he has done so in a most pleasing and arresting manner. He has succeeded in making the past live and describing with a sure touch the architectural and artistic beauties of the three principal cities of Alemannic Switzerland — Basel, Berne, and Zürich.

With admirable lucidity, the salient characteristics of those towns are outlined and summed up. Basel's history, the author says, is economic, Bern's military, and that of Zürich political. He shows how Basel — once a Bishopric — where an Emperor was crowned, became a seat of art and learning — to mention but Holbein and Erasmus — and the home of great merchant princes not unlike the house of the Fuggers of Augsburg. Berne, a town of soldiers, was governed by a powerful oligarchy, always ready for a fight and continually extending her possessions by conquest, emerging victor in the war against Burgundy and gradually establishing her military ascendancy over the neighbouring cantons.

Zürich, beloved of Charlemagne, her government in which the guilds had a voice, shrewd and practical, was the cradle of the Swiss Reformation under the impulse of Zwingli. Incidentally, she provided a little-known link with England by one of her scholars being tutor to Lady Jane Grey, whose letters, neatly written in Latin, are still preserved in the State Archives of the town.

The book displays a very considerable knowledge of local detail; it is carefully planned, the style clear and flowing; altogether a work that makes fascinating reading. With its illustrations and three maps the book constitutes a valuable contribution to the "Mediæval Town Series."
