The Indian Prime-Minister and Foreign Minister, Pandit Neru, arrived in Switzerland on the 3rd of May on an official visit, the main object of which was the exchanging of the instruments of ratification of the Indo-Swiss treaty of friendship—the first concluded by India with a European country.

On landing at the air port of Kloten, he was welcomed by Minister Zehnder and the Indian Minister in Berne. Afterwards he travelled by car to the "Lohn" near Kehrsatz (Ct. Berne) where he was the guest of the Swiss government. On his arrival, he was greeted by Monsieur Max Petitpierre, Swiss Foreign Minister. In the afternoon, he was received by the Federal Council in corpore at the Federal Palais, and in the evening a Banquet was held in honour of the distinguished guest, at which Monsieur E. Nobs, President of the Swiss Confederation extended to Pandit Neru the welcome of the Swiss Federal Council and the Swiss population.

The following day, he undertook a flight in a military machine over the alps, and in the evening a reception was held at the Indian Legation in Berne, which was attended by members of the government, representatives of the army, high civil functionaries and members of the Diplomatic Corps.

In a referendum the Swiss electorate rejected by roughly 612,000 votes against 210,000 a new federal law to combat tuberculosis. The main features of the law were State organization and control of anti-tuberculosis measures, compulsory X-raying of all inhabitants, and the possibility of enforcing compulsory State insurance against disease. The adverse vote may be ascribed on the one hand to opposition to any State controls, and consequently bureaucracy, and on the other hand to the inefficiency of X-raying at too-distant periods.
