Fieldmarshall Montgomery has paid a courtesy visit to the President of the Swiss Confederation.

Switzerland's delegation at the forthcoming German Foreign Debt Conference in London will consist of seven members.

Minister, Dr. W. Stucki, delegate to the Swiss Federal Council for special missions, will be the head of the delegation. It will lie in his discretion to increase the number of delegates by calling on experts if and when needed.

In view of the status of Switzerland as a neutral country it may be anticipated that reservations will be made on the part of the Swiss delegation in case decisions are taken which are not deemed to be compatible with Switzerland's neutrality.

Switzerland has asked the Chinese Communists to release five St. Bernard monks who were taken to Yunnan Province from Tibet, where they had been training Tibetan dogs in snow rescue work.

The monks, sent to Tibet from the St. Bernard Monastery in the Swiss Alps 20 years ago, were organising the building of a similar hospice in the Lhasa mountains.

The annual "June Festival" held in Zurich takes pride of place among the artistic attractions planned in Switzerland for the early summer. Prominent in the programme is an exhibition of paintings by Claude Monet, which follows an exhibition of paintings, water colours and graphic art by two other French painters, Bonnard and Vuillard. Also on show will be an exhibition of modern German graphic art and an exhibition called "Genius and Handwriting", with manuscripts of great artists, scholars and philosophers from the 15th to 20th century.

Opera-lovers will be interested in the first-night performance of a new version of "Cardillac", an opera by the composer Paul Hindemith, who lives in Zurich, as well as performances of the "Walküre" conducted by Furtwängler and guest appearances by the Rome Opera Company.

The Canton of Zurich, which joined the Swiss Confederation in 1351, last year celebrated its 600th anniversary on a giant scale. Now two more cantons — those of Glarus and Zug — which joined the young Confederation a year later are making preparations for similar festivities.

Zug has already decided to strike a special commemorative five-franc piece and public celebrations have been planned for June 27th-29th.

Following the great success of last year's International Music Festival in Geneva, in which 218 candidates from 29 countries took part, the organising committee is already making plans for the 1952 Festival — the eighth — which will be held from September 22nd to October 5th. There will be sections for singers, pianists, harpsichord players, violinists, oboists and saxophonists, and young people from all countries between the ages of 15 and 30 can take part. Prizes totalling 11,000 Swiss francs will be awarded to the winners. As usual the Festival is being organised in collaboration with Radio Geneva and the Orchestre de la Suisse romande.

The prospectus containing rules and the Festival programme has been issued and will be sent free of charge on application to the Festival Secretariat, Conservatoire de Musique, Geneva. The list of adjudicators, which will consist of eminent musicians from Switzerland and other countries, will be published at the end of February. Closing date for entries is July 15th, 1952.

A rare honour has been bestowed by the Ski Club of Great Britain upon Mr. Adolf Odermatt, Proprietor of the Hotel Bellvue, Engelberg. The Editor of the British Ski Year Book and Honorary Member of the Ski Club of Great Britain, Mr. Arnold Lunn, has personally presented him with a medallion in recognition of his great merits in strengthening the Anglo-Swiss ski friendship.

One of the best-known — and best-loved — composers in French-speaking Switzerland, Carlo Boller, has died suddenly. He was in charge of many choral societies, and his passing has been a loss to singers throughout the whole of Switzerland. He founded and directed, among many others, the celebrated "Chanson de Montreux", with which he has made many successful tours of Europe. Carlo Boller studied composition and conducting in Paris, under Vincent d'Indy, and won first prize for conducting at the "Schola Cantorum". Last winter he was invited to conduct the Nice-Côte d'Azur Orchestra.

Carlo Boller has an important place in the history of Swiss music: he wrote and adapted numerous songs and ballads for young and old, and for mixed choirs, he composed many festivals (the music of the last Narcissus Festival at Montreux, "Hadès et Coré", on a poem by R. L. Piachaud, with Clotilde Sakharoff, was his), and oratorios. His melodious and harmonious style fitted in perfectly with the need for musical expression so typically Swiss, and after the deaths of Jaques-Dalcroze and Gustave Doret — and, more recently the Abbé Bovet — Carlo Boller had become the most famed interpreter of folklore in French Switzerland.

The Swiss Newspaper Publishers' Association has said that a rise in Swiss newspaper prices is inevitable.

This follows a rise in newsprint and magazine paper prices which became effective on November 1st.

A resolution passed at an extraordinary meeting of the Association emphasised that additional burdens of this nature could not be borne by the newspaper organisations without an increase in newspaper and magazine prices.

A new service which has just been started makes Geneva the airport for the Mont Blanc region. Since last year it has been possible to travel by air from London to Geneva and thence to reach by train the same day such winter resorts as Zermatt and Kleine Scheidegg. There is now a coach service in connexion with airliners arriving from London, Paris, Brussels, Barcelona, Amsterdam and Rome, which ensures arrival two hours later at Chamonix and other Haute Savoie resorts of the Mont Blanc region. A similar return service makes it possible for Roman, Parisian, or London skiers to spend the week-end in Mont Blanc snows as well as in Valais and the Bernese Alps.
