ARMY

The Swiss Government has announced that it has decided to purchase fighter aircraft for the Swiss Air Force. It has submitted to Parliament a proposal for the acquisition of 100 Mirage III C fighters, to be built in Switzerland under licence.

The technical experts and airmen who have experimented with the Swedish Draken and the French Mirage III C fighters recently decided that the Mirage was better suited to Swiss geographical conditions and technical requirements. For political and economic reasons Switzerland would have preferred to buy from Sweden, who is also a member of the European Free Trade Association, but it is hoped that France, though belonging to the Common Market, will make some concessions in return for so big an order.

In a recent Session of the Swiss Parliament, the order for the French fighter aircraft has been confirmed.

VARIOUS

4,918,000 watches were exported from Switzerland in November 1960, to the value of 140,300,000.—francs. [A.T.S.]

It is a mere stone's throw from the palm-shaded shores of Lake Maggiore to a new off-beat ski-area high above the resort of Locarno, reached by a system of funiculars, aerial cableways, ski and chairlifts in less than thirty minutes. From Cardada, about 4,500 feet above sea-level, where there are several small but excellent restaurants and inns, ski-fans can venture some 1,500 feet higher up to Mt. Cimetta by chairlift or skilift. "We are not in a position to offer sensational high alpine runs to dare-devil ski adepts", it is admitted by representatives of the Locarno Tourist Office, "but we think our ski slopes, which normally boast perfect snow conditions and sunshine galore from December until March, are just what the middling skier may dream of." The Swiss Federal Railways have literally paved the way for Locarno-bound motorists from the north; while the St. Gotthard Pass is snow-blocked their daily shuttle of motor-car ferry trains through the St. Gotthard Tunnel is 26 south-bound and 28 northbound.

Less than 45 minutes from Zurich by car, at an altitude of 2,500 feet above sea-level, is the children's resort of Aegeri on the lake of the same name. Noted for its extremely mild climate, it is not much of a skiers' haven. Despite generally poor snow conditions a Children's Ski School has been established on the initiative of local children's homes and private schools. Excellent ski areas are to be found all around Aegeri; thus the ski school can operate all the winter. A chairlift from the neighbouring village of Sattel, and two skilift extensions, open up the vast winter sports grounds of Hochstuckli (some 5,200 feet above sea-level), where the children's ski courses are held when there is not enough snow in the valley. Aegeri, with its famous children's homes, some of which have their own private schools, is particularly appreciated by visitors from overseas anxious to "park" their children, while travelling in Europe, at a place which is typically Swiss as to cleanliness, dependability and health-building atmosphere.

Ice skating all the year round is the new attraction at Villars, the popular summer and winter resort. The recently inaugurated ice rink can cater for 3,000 spectators. The ice covers an area of 30 by 60 yards. A garage, a bowling alley with six lanes, and a restaurant will be housed under the skating surface at ground level.

The new artificial ice rink of Arosa, one of Switzerland's most popular winter sports resorts, has been designed for use also during the summer season. Its recent inauguration coincided with the festivities held on the occasion of the 75th anniversary of the local tourist association.

The Hotel Monte Rosa at Zermatt is one of the traditional "homes from home" at the Matterhorn village which have been completely modernised and rebuilt for the winter season 1960/61. Plans for a thorough face-lifting of the Hotel Mont Cervin have also been announced. Its rejuvenation will take eight months and is to cost 1.7 million Swiss francs.
