EXHIBITION OF THE "BURGUNDY SPOILS"

The Berne Historic Museum will celebrate its 75th anniversary of its present building at the Helvetiaplatz this year. To mark the occasion, there will be several special events. The main attraction will be an exhibition devoted to the "Burgundy Spoils" and "Works of Burgundian Court Art" from Swiss collections. For a few months, all the valuable Burgunderbeute which Charles the Bold, last Duke of Burgundy, had to leave to the victorious Swiss Confederates in the battles of Grandson, and Morat (1476) and Nancy (1477). The whole property is normally kept in various museums, churches, archives, libraries. There will be personal belongings of the Duke and his courtiers, state treasures, relics and other goods, fragments and parts of the camp, carpets, standards and weapons. There will be an exhibition, too, of illustrated lists and other documents which will give visitors an excellent idea of other treasures which once belonged to the Beute, but which have got lost since 1476/7. Apart from the goods and treasures conquered on the battlefields, there will be other works of Burgundian Art from Swiss collections, which will give an excellent picture of Burgundy culture and art of the 15th century and of the riches and splendour of the Burgundian Dukes. The exhibition will last approximately from the middle of May to the end of September. The catalogue will be prepared by PD Dr. Florens Deuchler (Rome/New York), the author of the basic work on the "Burgundy Spoils".
