rooms of the hotels under his care at a time when accommodation was very scarce. A private bathroom, he contends, is a "must" in any hotel and hotel room TV sets need hardly be considered as a luxury nowadays. If a hotel is to survive, he says, it must offer the best service possible—and this starts with the menial convenience of a private bathroom and a TV set. Such a hotel will survive, and the Osborne certainly will, because there will always be a clientele ready to support this managerial philosophy with its cheque books.

ABOUT BIRCHERMUESLI

The most preposterous of all the shaky statements that I have made in the course of a year's editorship of the S.O. must surely have been committed a month ago, when I said that no British food firm had thought of producing Birchermuesli! Friendly readers were quick to point out to me that Sainsbury's produce an excellent Birchermuesli for only 2/10d.! I've indeed tasted it and found it excellent. But I still prefer Familia, which of course costs 1/5d. more. "Familia" is, to my mind, a better deal than two other Swiss makes of Birchermuesli which I have discovered lately, which are "Frutti Fort" (4/10d.) and "Swissy" (3/6d.). I've also been told by English friends that it is possible to find Birchermuesli at health food stores such as Horsebury's and Prewitt's and at Crank's, the vegetarian restaurant. Birchermuesli must be better established here than I ever dreamt of.
