ENGLISH ACTIVITIES IN LAUSANNE

Mr. R. J. Keller, former Representative of the Swiss Credit Bank in London and former Chairman of the Swiss Observer's Advisory Council, who now lives on the shores of Lake Geneva, has sent us the October issue of the "News Bulletin" of the English Speaking Club of Lausanne.

The existence of this glossy and well organised news sheet, amply furnished in advertisements, was quite a revelation. A sample of the activities of the English speaking people of Lausanne advertised in the Bulletin's diary of events includes a Cocktail at the Carlton Hotel, a Lunch at the Hotel de la Paix with an after-dinner talk by the American Ambassador, a Christmas Ball and regular Bridge, French conversation and Bowling sessions. There is furthermore a regular Ladies' Lunch held at the Club.

The Bulletin, which has ten pages, is basically conceived as a "colony" news sheet, with information on a more intimate and gossipy level than that to which readers of our paper are accustomed. It is a parochial paper, which is explainable by the geographic concentration of its readership. One also suspects that the English Speaking Club of Lausanne is kept thriving by the presence of many Americans in the Lausanne area. The American love for bridge is stronger than the Swiss fondness for jass, the "ladies' lunch" is an Anglo-Saxon institution yet stronger than the Stammtisch, and in general the urge to belong to a Club is part of American mentality.

This may account for the surprising degree of vitality of English speaking life in Lausanne—but it is only an educated guess. We also guess that Mr. Keller, after having played an important role in the London Swiss Colony for so many years, is now joining the English of Switzerland—which may be a sign of nostalgia!

Australian Gent, working at London Airport would like Swiss pen friend, female, 40 to 50 years old. Must be able to speak English. Please reply to Mr. F. Cox, 19 Glen Avenue, Ashford, Middx.
