Letter to the Editor

It is perhaps inevitable that the correspondence about citizenship should eventually provoke a humorous response. It has. Mrs. Grant says it all!

WGS

Dear Sir,

Further to the correspondence re Swiss nationality, I too retained mine and have always been flashing my "red" passport with great pride!

However, the following little incident might bring a smile to our sons and daughters of Wilhelm Tell:

Way back in 1953 I used to eat in the canteen of a British firm I worked for.

The little lady in charge of the puddings always gave me a specially large helping with a wink of the eye. One day she pulled me to one side, stating "You are not English, are you, darling?"

"No", said I, and pulling myself up to my full height pronounced very proudly "I am Swiss". Whereupon she put her arm lovingly round my shoulders with an encouraging "Never mind, dear!"

Christmas

Christmas — the time when old friends and new friends exchange seasonal greetings and wishes — and although many things have changed in these modern times, we are happy to say we are still able to provide our readers with the opportunity of sending traditional greetings in the Special issue of the Swiss Observer, posted in December.

We shall be contacting all those who had greetings printed last year and will be delighted to print greetings from our new subscribers, too; all those interested should send us their name and address before 18th November. The cost for a published greeting is £3.
