150 Years of Railways in Switzerland - Update

As information becomes available we will bring it to you, although 1997 is quite some time away, we do appreciate that some members who live far away may need to plan their holidays, to fit in with business plans etc.

In 1997 Swiss Federal Railways, the private railway companies and the Swiss Transport Museum in Luzern will be looking back at 150 years of rail travel in Switzerland.

On 9th August 1847 rail travel started with the first steam train the "Spanisch-Brötli-Bahn" from Zurich to Baden.

In 1997, in addition to the celebrations, work will start at the Gotthard-Basis Tunnel (Alp-Transit), the largest building structure of the railway history. Special Alp-Transit Information Centres will be opened in Altdorf, Biasca, Lugano, Frütigen, Raron and Brig.

Until 1997 the reconstructed "Spanisch-Brötli-Bahn" as well as fast trains from 1930 and 1947 will be put into working condition again. A steam engine built in 1847 is at present being reconditioned under an unemployment scheme.

A new generation of two-storey train carriages will be available on the Intercity train line St. Gallen - Zurich - Bern - Interlaken.

This is the provisional programme for 1997,
3-4 April Degersheim (BT) Steam Festival.
