CALL FOR PAPERS

Under the collective rubric Rethinking Social Democracy, a series of three interdisciplinary and comparative conferences is being organised to explore the past histories, present opportunities and future prospects of European social democracy.

- London, 15/16/17 April 2004, Social Democracy, Culture and Society: Historical Perspectives
- Swansea, Easter 2005, The Political Economy of Social Democracy: Past, Present and Future
- Sheffield, Easter 2006, Post-industrial Societies and Social Democracy

The conferences seek to contribute to debates in progress across Europe and beyond by re-evaluating the legacies of social-democracy and mapping out its future prospects in view of the challenges of globalisation, the decline or retrenchment of organised labour movements and the claimed ideological hegemony of neo-liberalism.

We welcome preliminary offers of papers to the second and third conferences. Please send them by e-mail to Anne Morrow, conference administrator, anne.morrow@man.ac.uk.

Offers of papers to the first conference should be sent to the organisers by 10th September 2003. Proposals should include an abstract of about 300 words and a short CV with main relevant publications.
